Learning about Trust Law Part 1

Trust is based on Natural Law, undeniable law of God and nature that never changes. It is not written in any book however it is written in the hearts and minds of man using reason, logic and careful discernment.

The basic definition of a trust is something held by one party for the benefit of another which broadly applies to all trusts. Typically, there are 3 positions in the trust. The first is the grantor/settler. He or she is the one who holds the title to whatever property is involved and sets up the trust with rules and parameters. He grants it with the rules and settles it with the title to the property. The other two positions are the trustee (there can be more than one) and the beneficiary (also more than one).

The Trustee holds the legal title and controlling interest to all assets and carries out the conditions of the trust contract. This is called trust indenture as the trustee is an indentured servant of the beneficiary. The Trustee also holds all the liability for the trust. They hold responsibility for the property and must answer for it if things go wrong. The private side is the equitable title and where one finds the beneficiary and the public side is legal title where the Trustee would be involved, although the Trustee can go between the private and public.

The Trustee and beneficiary are separate and cannot be the same person. The beneficiary gets the benefits and the trustee only gets compensation. The beneficiary is regarded as the true owner. The trustee has control over what is in the trust only for the benefit of the beneficiary. The trustee controls whatever the asset is for the sake and benefit of the beneficiary. The three positions in a trust can be living men or women or entities however the living man or woman overrides claims by entities if that should arise.

Expressed trusts are the ones that are written, however implied trusts exist and for the most part almost all interactions are trusts. The constitution is an example of a trust. The rights are the property, the elected officials (indentured servants) are the trustees and we the people are the beneficiaries. We have allowed that relationship to be inverted but there is remedy and that would be for part 2.

In the world of trust law, they say there are over 30 types of trusts, but the primary types are

1. Living trusts (created during life)
2. Testamentary Trusts (created via will after death)
3. Revocable Trusts (can be changed or canceled by the grantor)
4. Irrevocable Trusts (cannot be altered once established)

Everything works through trusts and though we the people have neglected to claim our rights as beneficiaries of our many trusts and have allowed our lives to be less “beneficial”, there is remedy. Obviously, this isn’t something we will learn in the main stream educational processes. Even lawyers are not fully taught about trust law as it pertains to everyday freedoms.

The purpose of this series of articles is to break the barrier to trusts for everyone. It is not just for the very wealthy and in fact we are all able to make use of them for protection, for increasing our freedoms and to allow more abundance in our lives. One doesn’t have to spend thousands to set one up and most likely using a bar card lawyer will not be in your best interest. So, as I learn more I plan to break it down for all of us and find resources that will make it assessable to all of us.

These two resources have been very helpful and will eventually lead to the formation of trusts that will take me personally out of the public yet allow me to function in the public in a protected, more free way. I am happy to discuss or answer questions pertaining to all of this. Also happy to receive recommendations as well. Contact me at:

On the first Monday of every month, from 7-9 PM ET, a group of freedom-loving people from many different counties gathers to collaborate in the mission of restoring Pennsylvania to a land of freedom. (Zoom option available.)

(The 3rd Wednesday's call is led by the Chester County Republic Assembly) These Training Calls are focused on education on our Country's founding documents and setting up Lawful Assemblies across Pennsylvania. Attending these calls can help you understand the functions of an assembly and teach you how to become an active participant.

Pennsylvania needs eighteen (18) counties to be settled on the land to become de jure (lawful). Currently, Pennsylvania has four (4) "official" county assemblies settled on the land. These are Lancaster, Chester, Montgomery, and Allegheny counties. We also have ambassadors from various other counties who are interested in founding assemblies in their counties. If you are interested in starting an assembly, joining an assembly, or learning more about assemblies, please reach out to PennsylvaniaPioneers@protonmail.com.
